

Ambitious About Autism Training And Consultancy

Description

Service Description

Our team and what we do :

Ambitious about Autism is the national charity standing with autistic children and young people. We champion their rights and create opportunities.

We run specialist education services, an award-winning employment programme and children and young people are at the heart of our charity's decision-making, policy work and campaigning.

We also use our expertise to deliver Training and Consultancy to organisations seeking to improve awareness and understanding of autism. Our services can be tailored to meet the needs of specific audiences and support the creation of inclusive workplaces. Our clients include employers eager to learn best practices and schools seeking to enhance their understanding of autism within educational settings.

Choose from one of our courses or request a bespoke package where we design and deliver training to meet your individual needs and objectives. We can deliver our training courses in person or online on a data that suits you.

We run Talk About Autism, an online parents and carers community. Being connected with others is vital. Because without the right support, at the right time, there can be longstanding consequences on the quality of life of parents and carers of autistic children and young people. So, if you need to talk, join Talk about Autism - the online community for parents and carers.

We also run our Ambitious Youth Network to enable more autistic young people to have their voices heard. Through the network, autistic young people between the ages of 13 to 25 can share experiences, connect with others, have their say on Ambitious about Autism's projects as well as access a range of opportunities to advocate and improve services for autistic young people.

Your young person can join the Ambitious Youth Network, where they can meet other autistic young people, sign up to peer support sessions, and keep up to date with any new and exciting opportunities with us.
